7th September 2016 London, UK

Wem Technology, a leading West and Central London Managed Service IT provider, today announced it has become a Microsoft Authorized Education Partner (AEP), demonstrating its ability to meet Microsoft academic customers' evolving needs in today's dynamic business environment. The AEP program is designed to train participating resellers on Microsoft's Academic licensing, authorise them to purchase and resell Microsoft Academic licenses, and demonstrate to potential customers that they are approved and knowledgeable academic partners.

Managing Director Vin Jauhal comments that the Authorized Education Partner program "shows our commitment and specialism in academic products and allows us to continue to offer best-of-breed Microsoft solutions to academic organisations across the UK."

"By becoming AERs, partners show themselves to be committed and trained in providing discounted Microsoft academic products to the education market," said Anthony Salcito, Vice President of Education for Microsoft Corp.'s Worldwide Public Sector. "This authorisation, along with our other education partner initiatives, gives our partners recognition of their areas of expertise and our academic customers the confidence that they are buying from academic IT specialists."

The Microsoft AER Program is designed to authorise and equip organisations that deliver academic products and services through the Microsoft platform with the training, resources and support they need to provide their customers with superior experiences and outcomes.
